

GENERAL INDEX.

VOL. XIV. THIRD SERIES.

ABBOTSFORD, and Newstead Abbey. By the author of 'The Sketch Book,' 142; extracts, 142—150.

Abdy's journal of a residence and tour in the United States of North America, 89; America to be viewed as a grand experiment in political economy, ib.; England taunted with having entailed slavery on America, 90; 'the aristocracy of the skin,' 91; our author speaks out on the subject, 92; his object is not to lower the Americans as a people in our esteem, 93; their unreasonable antipathy to the African, 94; if the effect of slavery, it also upholds it, 95; mob-law in New England, 96; abolition of slavery in the state of New York, 97, 8; laws preventing the marriage of a white person to a black, 98, 9; anecdote, 100; are the free coloured population a more immoral race? 100—102; author's conversation with dr. Channing, 102; the free blacks have nothing of freedom but the name, 103; increase of the black population, 104; the excessive love of dress in America, 105; and their toryism, 106; the pride of caste is a substitute for the gradations of rank, 107; their dread of a mixture of the races, 108, 9; the conduct of the Americans does not coincide with their own declaration of independence, 109, 10; extract, 111, 12; Russia is a land of liberty compared to Georgia or Louisiana, 112; what is law in one state is not law in another, 113; Washington the very focus of slavery, 114—116; this prejudice to the blacks could have gained ground only in the time of profound national tranquillity, 117; the assumption of inferiority in mixed breeds at variance with physiological science, 118; extract, 119, 20; complexion, in America, of more consequence than character, 120; the anti-Christian character of this antipathy, 121—24; even the foreign policy of the nation influenced by it, 125, 26.

Abstract of evidence before the Select Committee appointed by Parliament to enquire into the extent, causes, &c., of the prevailing vice of intoxication, 283; certain changes in the form and pressure of modern drunkenness, ib.; the present gin-shop a greater evil than the ancient ale-house, 284; the increase of intoxication truly appalling, ib.; where is the remedy for it? 285; the claims of the temperance societies, ib.; five points for them to answer, 286, 87; neutrality unjustifiable with respect to temperance societies, 287; testimony of medical men regarding ardent spirits, 288—93; address of the Ulster temperance society, 293—5; why should men covenant together against this particular vice? 296, 7; is there Scripture warrant for the principle? 297—303; the worst enemy the temperance societies have had to contend with, has been ridicule, 303; but that the cause has been hurt in the conduct of her friends, is no argument against it, 304.

Abstract of the Douay Catechism, 11; and see Mendham.

American Slavery. See Jay's slavery in America, and Abdy's journal.

America and her Institutions. See New England; Latrobe's rambles; Colton's tour.

American Almanack and repository of useful knowledge for the year 1835, 257.

Amulet, 491; 'the Bengal missionary,' 504—506; full of mis-statements, 506; contributors to this year's Amulet, 506, 7.

Annuals, illustrations to the, 412; the Christian Keepsake, ib.; the Landscape Annual, ib.; Heath's Picturesque Annual, 413; Oriental Annual, ib.; the English Annual, 414.

Beattie's Switzerland, 236; a really, not relatively, cheap work, ib.; the subjects of the plates are sufficiently varied, and of high interest, 237.

I N D E X.

- Beckford's Excursion to Alcobaça, &c. See Recollections.
- Blackburn's Salvation of Britain introductory to the conversion of the world, 237; our duty to seek the conversion of our countrymen for the sake of the world, 238-241.
- Black's Church its own Enemy, being an answer to the pamphlets of the rev. dr. Chalmers, 84; a triumphant exposure of the doctor's blunders, ib.; extract, 84, 5.
- Boothroyd's Holy Bible, 332; is at once critical and popular, 337.
- Broadhurst's letter to lord Melbourne on the Irish Church and Irish tithes, 151; tithe in Ireland is collected for a Church alien to the people, ib.; extract, 152, 3; our author's suggestion that the Irish Catholic Church be endowed, 153, 4; Dissenterism and the endowed Church, 155, 6.
- Brougham's (lord) discourse of Natural Theology, 165; the best description of natural theology is furnished by the pen of inspiration, ib.; lord Bacon's distinction between Revelation and natural religion, 166; cannot Revelation be established by any evidence, without proving natural religion? 167; author's statement on the subject, 167-9; more ingenious than accurate, 169; the light of reason never conducted men to right reasoning, 170; the utility of the services of natural religion as subsidiary to the great help of Revelation is undeniable, 171; beyond the fact of the divine existence, Revelation is the source of the only certain knowledge which natural theology comprehends, 172; natural theology far above all other sciences, 173-75; the present volume reflects honour on the author, 176; its contents, ib.; reproof of the perverseness of scientific infidelity, 176, 7; Ray, Derham, and Paley, 177; author attempts to shew the unsoundness of the argumentum à priori, 178-80; all reasoning must assume something that is known, 181; the ancient theists, 182, 83; the deontological or ethical branch of natural theology, 183; contents of 'the Notes' appended to present volume, 184; altogether it presents indications of a sincere desire to promote the best interests of humanity, 184.
- Brockedon's road book from London to Naples, 231; an indispensable companion for travellers to Naples, ib.; and a most complete road-book, 232; specimens of the work - the road from Spoleto to Rome, 232-36.
- Chaloner's grounds of the Catholic doctrine, 11. See Mendham.
- Church, the; a dialogue between John Brown and William Mason, 157.
— rates, law and practice of, 519.
- Clement of Alexandria, some account of the writings and opinions of, by the bishop of Lincoln, 307; extract, 308, 9; birth-place of Clement doubtful, 310; probably at Athens, 311; extract from Clement's 'Hortatory Address to the Greeks.' 312; his 'Pædagogus,' 313; his beau idéal of the Christian profession, 314; the 'hypotyposes,' 315; was Clement really its author? ib.
- Coleridge's Table Talk, see Specimens.
- Colton's tour of the American Lakes, &c., 257; not the appropriate name for the volume, 279; which is a memorial disclosing the character and prospects of the Indian race, ib.; and which does credit to the author's principles, 281.
- Commemoration of the Reformation. See Horne's protestant memorial.
- Condensed commentary and family exposition of the Holy Bible, 332; specimens, 336, 37.
- Conder's Dictionary of Geography, 217; a work of extensive and original research, 218; extract, 218, 19; admirable summary of the leading facts connected with climatology, 219, 20; article 'Turk,' combining historical with geographical matter, 220, 21; claims of the work to public patronage, 221.
— Italy, 221; an extensive library might be formed out of merely the modern works that have been written about Italy, 222; excellence of present work as a skilful abridgment, as well as a judicious selection, 223; combined with considerable originality, ib.; extract from the preface, 223, 24; an example of the composition and concentration of the work, 224, 25; contents of first volume, 225; the Vall' Ombrosa, 225, 6; Rome, 226-31; value of present work to the traveller, and the instructor of youth, 231.
- Coverdale's English translation of the Bible, specimens of, 338-40.
- Dick's dissertation on Church Polity, 157; contents, ib.; extracts, 158-60.
- Delamotte's characters of trees, 304; value of the work, 306.
- Ellis's Christian Keepsake for 1836, 340; its illustrations, ib.; poetical extracts, 341-44; recollections of Wilberforce, 344-46; 'the shepherd's vigil,' 346, 47.

I N D E X.

Ethiopia; see Hoskins.

Forget-me-Not, 491; 'life in the woods,' 500-503; 'the death of the righteous,' 504.

Friendship's Offering, 491; 'hope,' 507, 508.

Gother's Papist misrepresented and represented, or a twofold character of popery, 11; extracts, 12-17. And see Mendham.

Grecian sculpture, comprising a series of engravings of the most celebrated specimens of ancient art, 432; proposed contents of this publication, 432, 3.

Harding's elementary art, 316; a work of this kind was much wanted, 317.

Harris's Great Teacher, 460; one of the best specimens of theological writing lately produced, ib.; shows that Our Saviour was the best teacher of his own religion, 461; contents, 462; specimen, 462-64; 'the originality of our Lord's teaching,' 465-68; 'the character of Christ the character of the Father,' 468-70; 'of the Holy Spirit,' 470, 71; further extract, 472, 3.

Hetherington's Fulness of Time, 349; a labour of the deepest and noblest interest to inquire into the mystery of providence, ib.; general plan of the present work, 350; parallel between individual and social character, 350, 51; the antediluvian era, 352; the first indications of human character, as expressed in social institutions, must be sought for in the patriarchal times, 353; the energetic democracies of Greece to be recognized as the worldly manhood, 354, 5; author's attempt to account for the existence of evil, 355-57; examined, 357.

Hoppus's Ireland's Misery and Remedy, &c., 318; the splendid protestant church establishment has done nothing for Ireland, 325; but has raised up positive obstacles to Christianity, 326; extract, ib.; the Irish society of London is a libel on the Irish established church, 327; religious statistics, 329, 30; an odious system of fraud and injustice, 331.

Horne's protestant memorial, for the commemoration, on the 4th day of October, 1835, of the third centenary of the reformation, 204; some principal chronological facts connected with the progress of the reformation, 204, 5; account of Coverdale's version of the bible, 206 8; John Fox in praise of the 'miraculous invention of printing,' 209-12; England owes to the art of printing, at least the permanence of her political and religious reformation, 212; the greatest boon bestowed upon the church since the apostolic age, 213; but the full benefit of this discovery has never been reaped till now, 213, 14; the translation of the scriptures was the principle of the first reformation, their being printed was the second, and the diffusion of the printed scriptures in all languages, is a third reformation, 215; extract, 216, 17.

Hoskins's travels in Ethiopia, 509; our author possesses many essential requisites for a traveller, 509; his companion, 510, 11; the banks of the Nile, 511; a land storm, 512; 'the site of the ancient capital of Ethiopia,' 513; some questionable hypotheses of our author, 514-16; ruins of Solib, 517; anecdote, 518, 19.

Howard's remarks on the erroneous opinions entertained respecting the Catholic religion, 1; author's sound notions of religious liberty, 29 31; and see Mendham.

Hughes, rev. Joseph. See Leifchild's memoir.

Huss, John, character of, 482-7.

Innes's letter to lord Glenelg, 375; colonial statistics, ib.; working of the free labour system in Antigua, 376; mr. Loving's testimony, 377, 78; the apprenticeship scheme, 379; results of its being dispensed with in Antigua, 379-82; the operation of the free labour system upon the interests of the negroes themselves, 383; the apprenticeship scheme in St. Kitt's, 384; this island far in advance of Nevis, 385, 6; Barbadoes, 386; British Guiana, 387; Grenada, 389; St. Lucia, 390; Dominica and St. Vincent, 391; British Guiana, 391-95; Jamaica, 395-99; author anticipates, from the difficulties of the planters, an improvement in society, 400; the overseers and book-keepers oppose the new order of things, 401; conduct of the house of assembly, 401-402; the present pamphlet fully proves the inefficiency of the apprenticeship system, 404.

Irish Church. The reform association, to the reformers of England, &c., 318; extract, 328, 29; and see Hoppus, and Broadhurst's letter.

Italy; see Conder's Italy, and Brockedon's road book.

Jay's slavery in America, 437; particulars of our author, ib.; extract from Dr. Cox's introduction, 438, 9; the coloniza-

I N D E X.

tionists themselves mainly the cause of the degradation of the free blacks, 440-42; case of miss Crandall, 442-44; series of facts proving the free people of colour to be citizens, 444-46; attempt to make out that the colonization society has the same object as the anti-slavery society, 446; flattering description of Liberia, 447; tells against the colonizationist, as much as for him, 448; hardships of American slavery, 449-55; laws against the free blacks, 455, 6; original slow progress in this country of anti-slavery opinions, 457; the church of England, till lately, a slave-holder, 458; slavery the fruitful source of all the national difficulties in America, 459, 60.

Karens, the, of India, supposed to be an aboriginal race of mountaineers, 61; and see North American review, art. Boardman.

Lardner's cabinet cyclopædia, 473; has not hitherto been subjected to competent critical notice, ib.; some errors in the distribution of its subjects, 475; extract from Swainson on zoology, 475-77; dr. Dunham's Germanic empire, 477; openly assails the protestant reformation, 478; charges Luther with duplicity, intemperance, and other vices, 478, 9; the author's character of Calvin, 480; and of John Huss, 482; Stebbing's church history, 481; an incomplete fragment, ib.; account of the martyrdom of Huss, 483-87; contents of the biographical cabinet, 487; and see lives of the most eminent literary and scientific men, &c.

Latrobe's rambles in North America, 1832, 33, p. 257; the present aspect of the federal republic seems almost to menace the breaking up of the social system, ib.; the existing disorders, however, are not directed against the government, 258; nor are they indicative of any weakness in the governing power, 259; it is slavery that menaces the peace of America, 260; our author's route, 269; description of the neighbourhood of Baltimore, 270, 71; the white mountains of New Hampshire, 271, 72; the scenery of the United States, though often sublime, is rarely picturesque, 273; our author most at home in his description of animate and inanimate nature, 275; sensitiveness of the Americans, ib.; character of the New Englander, 277, 78; our author avers that the holders of slaves, rather than the negroes, are subjects of pity, 278; and betrays other marks of prejudice, 280; see also New England and her institutions.

Lawrance's geology in 1835, 74; a preliminary essay on the phenomena of geological science, 75; specimen of the author's style, 75, 6.

Leifchild's memoir of the late rev. Joseph Hughes, A.M., 31; mr. Hughes's birth, and childhood, 32; loses his father in his tenth year, 33; his youth, 34; his ingenuous confession concerning this period of his life, 35; portrait of dr. Stennett, 36, 7; mr. Hughes joins the baptist academy at Broadmead, Bristol, 37; and subsequently enters King's College, Aberdeen, 38; forms a Sunday-school in Aberdeen, 39; is tutor to the Broadmead academy, and assistant minister of the church, 40; is displaced from both offices, ib.; Foster's criticism on his style of preaching, 40, 1; becomes minister of a chapel at Battersea; his labours there, 42; origin of the British and foreign bible society, 43; its first public meeting, 44; mr. Hughes's noble appropriation of the salary attached to the secretaryship, 45; his death, 46, 47.

Lewis's sketches and drawings of the Alhambra, 140; a splendid work, ib.; contents, 141.

Lindley's and Hutton's fossil flora of Great Britain, 76; extract, 77.

Literary intelligence, 87, 164, 254, 348, 527.

Lives of the most eminent literary and scientific men of Italy, Spain, and Portugal, Vols. I. and II., 473; contents, 487; life of Dante by Montgomery, ib.; remarks upon the genius of Dante, 488, 89; extract from the life of Ariosto, 490; altogether, two delightful volumes, ib.

Loudon's Arboretum Britannicum, or the hardy trees of Britain, &c., 304; full of valuable information, 306.

Mandeville's, viscount, Horæ Hebraicæ, 405; erudite and ingenious, ib.; founded on the supra-lapsarian scheme, 406; extracts, 407-409; the work contains much labour expended in vain, 411.

Matthews's practical guide to executors and administrators, &c., 199; written in a plain and luminous style, 203.

Memoirs of John Frederic Oberlin, 86.

Memoir of the life and public services of sir Thomas Stamford Raffles, by his widow, 189; a book of uncommon interest, 190; extracts from a memoir on the Malay states, 191-93; several islands of the Malay archipelago inhabited by

INDEX.

Christians, 194; the discernment and heroic perseverance of sir Stamford Raffles, 195; extracts, 195-197; sir Stamford Raffles and the East India Company, 198.

Mendham's memoirs of the council of Trent, 1; dedicated to the pope, ib.; manifesto of Gregory XVI., 2-5; exhibits the Roman Catholic faith as neither changed nor improved, 5; but yet the English Catholic has always differed from the genuine Roman Catholic, 6, 7; how unfair would it be to charge to the belief of every churchman, all contained in the 39 articles, the rubric, the canons ecclesiastical, &c., 7; there would be similar unfairness in treating thus members of the church of Rome, 8; besides, exaggerations and misrepresentations recoil on the Protestant cause, 9; Romish ingenuity in defence of popish tenets, 11; extracts from Gother's Papist misrepresented and represented, 12-17; extracts from Dr. Challoner's grounds of the catholic doctrine, 17-20; uniform conduct of all church and state religionists, 21; why should popery be more angrily encountered than Mohammedism? 22; origin of the council of Trent, 23; extract, 23-25; Paul III. issues a commission to examine into the abuses of the papal court, 25; obstructions to its meeting, ib.; the council meets in December, 1545, 26; extracts, 26, 7; after making every due allowance, much still remains in the Romish church, for our uncompromising opposition, 28, 9.

Natural Theology; see Brougham's discourse.

New England and her Institutions. By one of her sons, 257; the opinion in New England regarding slavery, 260-62; present volume gives a complete insight into New England character, 262; its contents, 263; the efficiency of the voluntary principle, 263-65; religious statistical information regarding New England, 265: extract, 267, 8. And see Latrobe's rambles.

North American Review, No. 87, Art. Life of G. D. Boardman, 57; early history of Boardman, 58; his thoughts are directed to the Burmese mission, ib.; arrives, with his wife, in India, 59; their imminent danger, 60, 61; interesting particulars of the Karens, 61-64; Mr. Boardman's success with them, 65; they urge him to come and visit them, 66; anecdote, 66, 67; mr. Boardman's labours in Tavoy, 68; seriously affect his health, 69; he visits the Karens, 69, 70; his domestic afflictions, 70, 71; and increasing disease, 72, 3; his death, 74.

Oriental Annual, 491; contents, 498; extract, 499, 500.

Parsons's memoirs of American Missionaries, 57; contents, 58.

Penitentiaries (United States). Report of William Crawford, esq., on the, 89. And see Abdy.

Picture of the new town of Herne Bay, by a lady, 254.

Popery, modern. See Mendham's memoirs of the council of Trent.

Posthumous letters of the rev. Rabsshakeh Gathercoal, 157; extract, 161-63.

Raffles, sir Thomas Stamford. See memoir of the life, &c.

Retzsch's outlines to Shakspeare, second series, 48; no comparison can be made between Retzsch and Flaxman, 49, 50; Retzsch successful while illustrating the poets of his own country, 50-53; but he has failed in the present work, 53; his 'Hamlet,' 54; 'Macbeth,' 55, 56.

——— Umriss zu Schiller's Lied von der Glocke. Outlines to Schiller's song of the bell, 48; beautiful illustrations of the poem, 53. And see Retzsch's outlines to Shakspeare.

Recollections of an excursion to the monasteries of Alcobaca and Batalha, by the author of Vathek, 127; our author's companions, ib.; their arrangements for the excursion, 128; extracts, 128-30; beautiful description of scenery, 131-33; further extract, 135.

Riland's Antichrist; Papal, Protestant, and Infidel, 318; Dissenters accused of making common cause with the Papists, 319; this has not the shadow of evidence to rest upon, 320; extract, 321, 22; dissenters quite ready to join in combating the errors of popery, 322; were all evangelical clergymen such as our author, a re-union of protestants would no longer be chimerical, 324.

Ritchie's journey to St. Petersburg and Moscow, 491; description of St. Petersburg, 492, 93; its population seem scarcely to belong to the place, 493; extract, 493-95; anecdotes of the emperor Nicholas, 495-97.

Roberts's, miss, scenes and characteristics of Hindoostan, 414; character of the work, 415; the apparent indifference of the public mind respecting India, 415-16; of great importance, that it should

INDEX.

- tionists themselves mainly the cause of the degradation of the free blacks*, 440-42; case of miss Crandall, 442-44; series of facts proving the free people of colour to be citizens, 444-46; attempt to make out that the colonization society has the same object as the anti-slavery society, 446; flattering description of Liberia, 447; tells against the colonizationist, as much as for him, 448; hardships of American slavery, 449-55; laws against the free blacks, 455, 6; original slow progress in this country of anti-slavery opinions, 457; the church of England, till lately, a slave-holder, 458; slavery the fruitful source of all the national difficulties in America, 459, 60.
- Karens, the, of India, supposed to be an aboriginal race of mountaineers, 61; and see North American review, art. Boardman.
- Lardner's cabinet cyclopædia, 473; has not hitherto been subjected to competent critical notice, ib.; some errors in the distribution of its subjects, 475; extract from Swainson on zoology, 475-77; dr. Dunham's Germanic empire, 477; openly assails the protestant reformation, 478; charges Luther with duplicity, intemperance, and other vices, 478, 9; the author's character of Calvin, 480; and of John Huss, 482; Stebbing's church history, 481; an incomplete fragment, ib.; account of the martyrdom of Huss, 483-87; contents of the biographical cabinet, 487; and see lives of the most eminent literary and scientific men, &c.
- Latrobe's rambles in North America, 1832, 33, p. 257; the present aspect of the federal republic seems almost to menace the breaking up of the social system, ib.; the existing disorders, however, are not directed against the government, 258; nor are they indicative of any weakness in the governing power, 259; it is slavery that menaces the peace of America, 260; our author's route, 269; description of the neighbourhood of Baltimore, 270, 71; the white mountains of New Hampshire, 271, 72; the scenery of the United States, though often sublime, is rarely picturesque, 273; our author most at home in his description of animate and inanimate nature, 275; sensitiveness of the Americans, ib.; character of the New Englander, 277, 78; our author avers that the holders of slaves, rather than the negroes, are subjects of pity, 278; and betrays other marks of prejudice, 280; see also New England and her institutions.
- Lawrance's geology in 1835, 74; a preliminary essay on the phenomena of geological science, 75; specimen of the author's style, 75, 6.
- Leifchild's memoir of the late rev. Joseph Hughes, A.M., 31; mr. Hughes's birth, and childhood, 32; loses his father in his tenth year, 33; his youth, 34; his ingenuous confession concerning this period of his life, 35; portrait of dr. Stennett, 36, 7; mr. Hughes joins the baptist academy at Broadmead, Bristol, 37; and subsequently enters King's College, Aberdeen, 38; forms a Sunday-school in Aberdeen, 39; is tutor to the Broadmead academy, and assistant minister of the church, 40; is displaced from both offices, ib.; Foster's criticism on his style of preaching, 40, 1; becomes minister of a chapel at Battersea; his labours there, 42; origin of the British and foreign bible society, 43; its first public meeting, 44; mr. Hughes's noble appropriation of the salary attached to the secretaryship, 45; his death, 46, 47.
- Lewis's sketches and drawings of the Alhambra, 140; a splendid work, ib.; contents, 141.
- Lindley's and Hutton's fossil flora of Great Britain, 76; extract, 77.
- Literary intelligence, 87, 164, 254, 348, 527.
- Lives of the most eminent literary and scientific men of Italy, Spain, and Portugal, Vols. I. and II., 473; contents, 487; life of Dante by Montgomery, ib.; remarks upon the genius of Dante, 488, 89; extract from the life of Ariosto, 490; altogether, two delightful volumes, ib.
- Loudon's Arboretum Britannicum, or the hardy trees of Britain, &c., 304; full of valuable information, 306.
- Mandeville's, viscount, Horæ Hebraicæ, 405; erudite and ingenious, ib.; founded on the supra-lapsarian scheme, 406; extracts, 407-409; the work contains much labour expended in vain, 411.
- Matthews's practical guide to executors and administrators, &c., 199; written in a plain and luminous style, 203.
- Memoirs of John Frederic Oberlin, 86.
- Memoir of the life and public services of sir Thomas Stamford Raffles, by his widow, 189; a book of uncommon interest, 190; extracts from a memoir on the Malay states, 191-93; several islands of the Malay archipelago inhabited by

I N D E X.

- Christians*, 194; the discernment and heroic perseverance of sir Stamford Raffles, 195; extracts, 195-197; sir Stamford Raffles and the East India Company, 198.
- Mendham's memoirs of the council of Trent, 1; dedicated to the pope, ib.; manifesto of Gregory XVI., 2-5; exhibits the Roman Catholic faith as neither changed nor improved, 5; but yet the English Catholic has always differed from the genuine Roman Catholic, 6, 7; how unfair would it be to charge to the belief of every churchman, all contained in the 39 articles, the rubric, the canons ecclesiastical, &c., 7; there would be similar unfairness in treating thus members of the church of Rome, 8; besides, exaggerations and misrepresentations recoil on the Protestant cause, 9; Romish ingenuity in defence of popish tenets, 11; extracts from Gother's Papist misrepresented and represented, 12-17; extracts from Dr. Challoner's grounds of the catholic doctrine, 17-20; uniform conduct of all church and state religionists, 21; why should popery be more angrily encountered than Mohammedism? 22; origin of the council of Trent, 23; extract, 23-25; Paul III. issues a commission to examine into the abuses of the papal court, 25; obstructions to its meeting, ib.; the council meets in December, 1545, 26; extracts, 26, 7; after making every due allowance, much still remains in the Romish church, for our uncompromising opposition, 28, 9.
- Natural Theology; see Brougham's discourse.
- New England and her Institutions. By one of her sons, 257; the opinion in New England regarding slavery, 260-62; present volume gives a complete insight into New England character, 262; its contents, 263; the efficiency of the voluntary principle, 263-65; religious statistical information regarding New England, 265: extract, 267, 8. And see Latrobe's rambles.
- North American Review, No. 87, Art. Life of G. D. Boardman, 57; early history of Boardman, 58; his thoughts are directed to the Burmese mission, ib.; arrives, with his wife, in India, 59; their imminent danger, 60, 61; interesting particulars of the Karens, 61-64; Mr. Boardman's success with them, 65; they urge him to come and visit them, 66; anecdote, 66, 67; mr. Boardman's labours in Tavoy, 68; seriously affect his health, 69; he visits the Karens, 69, 70; his domestic afflictions, 70, 71; and increasing disease, 72, 3; his death, 74.
- Oriental Annual, 491; contents, 498; extract, 499, 500.
- Parsons's memoirs of American Missionaries, 57; contents, 58.
- Penitentiaries (United States). Report of William Crawford, esq., on the, 89. And see Abdy.
- Picture of the new town of Herne Bay, by a lady, 254.
- Popery, modern. See Mendham's memoirs of the council of Trent.
- Posthumous letters of the rev. Rabshakeh Gathercoal, 157; extract, 161-63.
- Raffles, sir Thomas Stamford. See memoir of the life, &c.
- Retzsch's outlines to Shakspeare, second series, 48; no comparison can be made between Retzsch and Flaxman, 49, 50; Retzsch successful while illustrating the poets of his own country, 50-53; but he has failed in the present work, 53; his 'Hamlet,' 54; 'Macbeth,' 55, 56.
- Umriss zu Schiller's Lied von der Glocke. Outlines to Schiller's song of the bell, 48; beautiful illustrations of the poem, 53. And see Retzsch's outlines to Shakspeare.
- Recollections of an excursion to the monasteries of Alcobaca and Batalha, by the author of Vathek, 127; our author's companions, ib.; their arrangements for the excursion, 128; extracts, 128-30; beautiful description of scenery, 131-33; further extract, 135.
- Riland's Antichrist; Papal, Protestant, and Infidel, 318; Dissenters accused of making common cause with the Papists, 319; this has not the shadow of evidence to rest upon, 320; extract, 321, 22; dissenters quite ready to join in combating the errors of popery, 322; were all evangelical clergymen such as our author, a re-union of protestants would no longer be chimerical, 324.
- Ritchie's journey to St. Petersburg and Moscow, 491; description of St. Petersburg, 492, 93; its population seem scarcely to belong to the place, 493; extract, 493-95; anecdotes of the emperor Nicholas, 495-97.
- Roberts's, miss, scenes and characteristics of Hindoostan, 414; character of the work, 415; the apparent indifference of the public mind respecting India, 415-16; of great importance, that it should

I N D E X.

- be taught to take an interest in the subject, 417; description of the Government house, Calcutta, 418-20; etiquette, 421, 22; Patna, 422-25; ancient city of Gour, 425-27; Mandoo, 427, 28; Bejapoor, 428-30; a night in the jungles, 430, 31.
- Roscoe's tourist in Spain, 491; account of Cadiz, 497, 98.
- Rudiments of Trees, from nature, 304; a clever series, 306.
- Sacred Classics. Vol. XIX. Knox's Christian philosophy. Vol. XX. Selections from rev. John Howe's works, 241; extracts, 241-46.
- Saffery's poems on Sacred Subjects, 247; many of them of the highest order of excellence, 248; 'the walk to Emmaus,' 248-50; 'Hagar in the desert,' 250, 51; 'apostrophe to Jeremiah,' 251-53; further extract, 253, 54.
- Scriptural unity of the Protestant Churches exhibited in their published confessions, 78; contents, 82; extract, 82, 3.
- Second address of the Annual Assembly of the congregational union of England and Wales, 78; its main topic, a faithful administration of scriptural discipline, ib.; extract, 78-81.
- Silver's memorial to his Majesty's government on the danger of intermeddling with church-rates, 519; a literary curiosity, 520; extracts, 520-24; author's opinions on registration, 524; and on marriage, 525.
- Specimens of the table-talk of the late Samuel Taylor Coleridge, 135; the general effect of these 'specimens' is liable to hurt the memory of their subject, 136; extracts, 137; Coleridge's critical discussions of the highest value, 138; sir James Mackintosh, 139; Canning, 140.
- Statement relative to church accommodation in Scotland, 84; extract, 85, 86.
- Styles's, Dr., ministerial solicitude and fidelity, 434; extracts, 434-36.
- Styles's R., poems, 411; 'stanzas,' 411, 12.
- Taylor, the whole works of the right rev. Jeremy, 358; the reviving partiality for our older writers, ib.; how is it that the older writers manifest such a splendour of genius? 359; was there not eminent intellectual character formed in the time of the Stuarts? 361; peculiarities of that character, 362; Jeremy Taylor, and Milton, 363, 64; the imagination of Taylor, his pre-eminent endowment, 365; Milton's language poetic, not his style of thinking, 366; Taylor's political opinions accounted for, 367; he was more pedantic than Milton, 368; his qualifications as a preacher, 369-74.
- Temperance societies, claims of the; see abstract of evidence before the select committee.
- Tracts, British and Foreign, 283.
- Testamentary counsels and hints to Christians on the right distribution of their property by will, 199; contents, 200; much litigation occasioned by men making their own wills, 201; 'the provision to be made for widows,' ib.; author's ideas on primogeniture, 202; 'on the claims of the Redeemer's cause,' 202, 3; present volume may be cordially recommended to the Christian reader, 203.
- Thomas Johnson's reasons for Dissenting from the Established Church, 157.
- Treasury Bible, 332; its motto, ib.; extracts, 334, 35; larger edition of the same bible, 336.
- Williams's memoirs of the life, character, and writings of sir Matthew Hale, knt., 185; the subject of present volume one of the most instructive characters of the British Nepos, ib.; particulars of his life, 185, 86; extract, 187; comparison of Coke and Hale, 188, 89.
- Winkles's cathedrals, 317; character of the work, 317, 18.
- Works recently published, 88, 164, 256, 348, 436, 528.

WORKS PUBLISHED BY
JACKSON AND WALFORD,

18, St. Paul's Church Yard.

In 2 vols. 8vo, with Lithographic Views and Wood Cuts, 24s. cloth,

A NARRATIVE of the VISIT to the AMERICAN CHURCHES, by the Deputation from the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

By ANDREW REED, D.D., and JAMES MATHESON, D.D.

"—— contains not a few descriptive episodes, which, had we room to extract them, would gratify all our readers."—Quarterly Review.

"They are intelligent and acute observers, and singularly candid and dispassionate.—No one, we are satisfied, who reads this book with an honest desire for information, will withhold his conviction from the statements it contains, or will fail to be gratified with the picture which it gives of the social state of our American brethren."—Morning Chronicle.

In post 8vo, with a Full Length Portrait from an Original Painting, in possession of the Family. 10s. 6d., cloth.

MEMOIRS of the Life, Character, and Writings of SIR MATTHEW HALE, KNIGHT, Lord Chief Justice of England.

By J. B. WILLIAMS, Esq., LL.D. F.S.A.

"No one can rise from an attentive perusal of these Memoirs without being in some degree improved both as a lawyer and a man. We urgently recommend the work to every student in particular, and to our brethren in general."—Legal Observer.

"It is an important benefit conferred on society to write popular biographies of wise and good men, and Dr. Williams has conferred that benefit. There are few biographies so worthy to be diligently studied as this."—Leeds Mercury.

In 8vo, 10s. 6d. cloth,

The CAUSES of the CORRUPTION of CHRISTIANITY. By the Rev. ROBERT VAUGHAN, Professor of Ancient and Modern History in the University of London, Author of the Life of Wycliffe, &c., &c.

"Mr. Vaughan has brought to his undertaking the knowledge of the historian, the learning of the divine, and the spirit of the philosopher."—Spectator.

A new Edition, in 18mo, 4s cloth,

LETTERS to a FRIEND; intended to relieve the Difficulties of an anxious Inquirer, under serious Impressions, on the Subjects of Conversion and Salvation. By the late Rev. THOMAS CHARLTON HENRY, D.D., of Charleston, South Carolina. Revised and corrected, with Memoirs of the Author, and other Prefatory Matter, by JOHN PYE SMITH, D.D., and the Rev. THOMAS LEWIS.

"It will be found a treasure to the anxious inquirer; and we hope many of our more advanced readers, who watch over the first impressions of their younger friends, will avail themselves of the powerful aid of this admirable treatise."—Evangelical Register.

WORKS PUBLISHED BY JACKSON AND WALFORD.

Eight vols. 12mo, 1l. 12s. boards; or separate, 4s each,

SKETCHES of SERMONS, furnished by their respective Authors; with an Index of the Texts, &c.

•• These volumes contain 400 Sermons, on some of the most interesting passages of Holy Writ, preached to congregations of the United Kingdom and on the European Continent.

Second Edition, 8vo, 10s. 6d. cloth,

CHRISTIAN ETHICS; or, Moral Philosophy on the Principles of Divine Revelation. By RALPH WARDLAW, D.D.

"Dr. W. has conducted his argument with profound theological wisdom, and admirable philosophical acuteness."—Christian Guardian.

Third Edition, with additional Narratives, 12mo, 5s. boards,

The PASTOR'S SKETCH BOOK; or, Authentic Narratives from Real Life. By GEORGE REDFORD, LL.D.

"They bring a recommendation from truth and utility, and these amaranthine flowers will yield a perfume when all artificial spices have lost their fragrance."—Imperial Magazine.

In 12mo, 5s. boards,

FIVE DISCOURSES on DIVINE INFLUENCE, and its connection with instituted Means, and the Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit. With Notes and Illustrations.

By the Rev. W. ORME.

"Mr. Orme has given a judicious and able exposition of the Scripture doctrine, accompanied with practical strictures and observations highly deserving of general attention."—Eclectic Review.

In royal 16mo, 3s. cloth,

A DISCOURSE of NATURAL and MORAL IMPOTENCY. By JOSEPH TRUMAN, B.D. A New Edition, with a Biographical Introduction, by HENRY ROGERS.

"The earliest regular treatise on the subject.—Mr. Truman has anticipated the most important arguments of succeeding writers, and has evinced throughout a most masterly acquaintance with his subject."—Works of the Rev. Robert Hall, Vol. IV.

In 32mo, price 6d. sewed,

CHRISTIAN SYMPATHY.

By JOHN HOWARD HINTON, A.M.

By the same Author,

In 32mo, 1s. cloth; or 2s. silk,

MEMOIR of J. HOWARD HINTON, who died at Reading, Jan. 10, 1835, aged 13 years and 7 months.

"We warmly recommend this little book to the attention of our young friends, and should sincerely pity those who can read it without emotion and profit."—Family Magazine.

